So what went wrong?

As regular readers of PhotoNews will know, the start of the New Year is always a bit difficult when it comes to getting the first lot of prints in the post on time. Normally it is because of family and other commitments but this year it was a chain of events that started in November with a failed computer. Getting it fixed took several weeks due to the pre Christmas lock-down whilst, at the same time, on-line orders exceeded anything I had ever experienced but couldn't process because of the computer problem.

Once the pre-Christmas lock-down had ended it took a couple of days to get the computer fixed up to Christmas to get most of the backlog of orders out of the way. Then came the post Christmas lock-down and another flood of orders by which time PhotoNews 137 had closed.

Today I have almost caught up with the orders and hope to be back on track by mid-March if everything goes as planned but, does it ever?

So a big thank you to everybody being so patient.

Bob
